

The present invention discloses a method and apparatus for manufacturing trusted devices. A licensing authority provides keying information to a multitude of 5 manufactures that insert the keying information into trusted devices. The trusted devices generate final private and public keys using the keying information. The keys may then be certified by the manufacture and verified by other devices.